VOL. XXII NO. 4

NORTHFIELD, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 30, 1929

PRICE FIVE CENTS

A Special Appeal is Now Being Broadcasted for the Air Marking of Many More of the Towns and Villages in New England

Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Selectmen, Legion Posts and Other Organizations, also all Public Spirited Individuals are Urged to Prompt Action

This Move is Most Important Just at this Time in Order to Maintain the Lead We are Establishing in the Coming Great Air Industry

In an effort to bring to completion a project of major importance to aviation development in New England, the New England Council's Cooperating Committee on aeronautical development is urging the air-marking of every New England community.

At the same time, the committee pointed out that the air-marking of communities, in view of the rapid increase of passenger flying, provides an important medium of advertising for the communities themselves.

In a statement concerning the forthcoming campaign, Howard Coonley of Boston, chairman of the Committee on Aeronautical Development, announced that through the cooperation of the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, every community providing itself with an approved air-marker, established in accordance with the United States Department of Commerce standards, will be awarded a certificate of distinguished service to aviation signed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

The Committee in its campaign will seek the cooperation of chambers of commerce, business men and concerns, and other progressive interests within the communities, and believes that the cooperation of all such interests in each community would make the erection of air-markers in most of them a relatively simple matter. It is pointed out that the job can only be done through local interest and initiative, and often can be accomplished most effectively by cooperative measures.

The air-marking of a community, Chairman Coonley points out, in its simplest form consists of placing the name of the town or city in large letters on the roof of some building easily seen from the air. Recommended practice includes the placing of an arrow pointing north on the rooftop also, with the letter "N" at the base of the arrow. Described as a relatively simple and inexpensive operation, the establishment of this type of air-marker is facilitated by standard instructions compiled by the Department of Commerce and which will be distributed by the New England Council's Committee on Aeronautical Development.

Besides Chairman Coonley, other members of the committee are: Maine, Chester A. Jordan, Jordan and Jordan, Portland; New Hampshire, Fred A. Putnam; Markham Chapin Co., Keene; Vermont, Mason G. Beebe, Burlington; Rhode Island, Charles G. Greenhalgh, Pawtucket; Connecticut, Col. J. W. Gilson, assistant adjutant general, Hartford.

"Melody Lane" With Eddie Leonard at the Garden Theater

Eddie Leonard, famous minstrel, comes to Garden theatre, Greenfield on Sunday for four days in "Melody Lane," written by Joe Swerling whose play "Kibitzer" was a recent New York success, is an exceptionally human story blended with Leonard's minstrel and ballad singing which served to introduce three new song hits, "Beautiful," "Sugar Cane Round My Door" and "The Bogie Man Am Here."

Leonard, to whom the sceptre of minstrel king descended from Primrose and Dockstader, McIntyre and Heath, and who wrote the ever popular "Ida Sweet as Apple Cider," does his blackface stuff on the stage in this picture as an integral part of the story, dealing as it does with backstage elfie. In addition to the three new songs Leonard dances and sings several of his old-time favorites.

An added feature hit will be the drama and sweeping thrills of war on the high seas when "Blockade," FBO's great melodrama of rum row will be shown.

Anna Q. Nilsson, given a role for which she declares she had been waiting through the whole of her career, strikes dramatic heights as the queen of the rum pirates. Around her is woven a gripping tale of adventure, intrigue and love.

New York Car in Accident On Main Street

Last Friday evening at 5.45 a New York car speeding down Main street, overturned twice and righted itself again. There were four people in the car. The bar was quite badly damaged.

Morgan garage. One of the passengers was slightly injured. The party stayed at Mrs. Fred Merrifield's overnight and then proceeded to New York by train.

"An Old Maid's Venture", and "How the Story Grew"

The Northfield Grange will present two short plays "An Old Maid's Venture", and "How the Story Grew", on next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Grange hall. Admission 25c for all.

Home Economics Night Was A Good Time at the Grange

Home Economics night was observed last Tuesday night in the Grange. Most of the Grangers came dressed in overalls and house dresses, those who did not were fined ten cents.

After a bountiful supper, that was served at 7 o'clock, the business meeting was held. The lecturer's hour was open to the public.

There were original papers read by Dorothy Miller, L. O. Clapp and A. H. Mattoon. There was a piano solo by Gertrude Gibson, after which there was a short play put on by the young people. Everyone seemed to have had an enjoyable time.

GOOD WORK GOES ON MERRILY DOWN AT THE MEADOW FOR OUR AIRPORT

Volunteers are Urged to Bring Their Own Tools and the Ladies are Now Invited to Make and Contribute the First Wind Cone

Last Saturday there were some very efficient volunteers for work down on the meadow and good progress was made. In the morning the digging out of the sod marking for the 100 foot circle was completed and in the afternoon a number of the trees along the river bank were felled and a lot of brush cleaned up. It seemed a pity that quite a number of willing volunteers came down who did not bring tools and so could not be furnished from the limited supply available. It is hoped hereafter that all those who want to help bring along their favorite tools as there is all kinds of work to be done: work for axes, cross cut saws, shovels, grub hoes, etc.

Mr. Randolph has offered the white sand we need for the ground markers and the next thing is to get it down on the field and spread in the markings. Later on, we shall hope to coat it with whitewash or white paint, so that it will stand out as clearly as possible.

Volunteers from among the fair sex are now wanted to make and contribute the wind markers. This will be of a bright yellow or orange colored material, made in a cone shape, about four feet long. Patterns and design will be gladly furnished upon application. We should like the donor's initials worked upon it in colored yarn or embroidery silk. It is quite essential that we have this wind marker in position just as quickly as possible, as already quite a number of planes have been invited and some of them already accepted for early landing; and they need the wind marker for safe guidance in making the field, as they must come down in the face of the breeze prevailing at the moment of their descent.

"Lal" Quinlan and the editor spent the afternoon of Monday and the morning of Tuesday in Boston, most of the time at Boston Airport, and made a number of valuable connections for future business. Several of the field pilots of the commercial companies and a detachment of the army planes will land here just about as quickly as the field can be made ready for them. For this reason it is hoped that just as many volunteers as possible will offer their services (not forgetting to bring their own tools) on weekday evenings as well as Saturdays or any day or time they can conveniently spare.

"LIVE WIRE FAIR" IS TO BE BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER

There are few people in New England who have not heard of the "Live Wire Fair," which is held annually at Greenfield, Mass., early in September. By a steady advance in the quality of its attractions and the size of its exhibits, this fair has grown rapidly in popular favor through the years. The dates this season are Tuesday and Wednesday, September 10 and 11, with night shows Monday and Tuesday, September 9 and 10. Each night show is featured by a big vaudeville bill and a great display of fireworks, in fact by seeing the Greenfield fair at night, one sees everything on the program except the harness racing. Good roads lead to Greenfield from every point of the compass and a motor trip there on the fair dates will well repay those who take it.

The vaudeville bill this year includes the big Ritchie water show, in which four mermaids and one merman do all sorts of aquatic feats including under water stunts, seen by the crowds through the sides of an immense glass tank, and Capt. Hoover, who dives twice daily from a 100-foot platform into six feet of water. Besides these two acts there will be six other stellar vaudeville acts. The horse show, an innovation last year, will be repeated with a larger number of fancy saddlers under the direction of expert riders. This attraction will be given on Sept. 10th only.

Bigger and better shows of blooded stock, two big exhibition halls, a merry midway, harness racing both days, high school athletic meet and juvenile parade are a few of the other interesting items on the entertainment program.

It is understood that the road will be completed on the east end as far as W. F. Richards' store and work will then start on the Farley end and work east to this point. Practically all the drains have been installed, grading completed and curves eliminated on this end and everything is in readiness to put on the crushed rock and roll 'er down. JACKETS AND COATS

The world of chic is torn between the full length coat and the shorter jacket effect that has come into its own this season. On the left we have the straight line coat that is designed for dress or general utility wear. The collar may be standing or rolling. Turn-back cuffs finish the sleeves.

On the right is one of the new little jackets that have gained such favor with both young and old. This one is smartly tailored to go with the checked dress underneath. From the front the dress looks like a separate waist and skirt while the back is straight.

Ambitious Plans For St. James Parish Flower Show

Plans develop and schemes are worked out to make the flower show, which is to be held in St. James parish hall on Sept. 5, a success. Garden lovers will be glad to see the exhibition and to note what can be accomplished in gardens near home. Gardens outside of Greenfield have been visited by the members this year and this has added greatly to the interest in growing flowers. The committee will welcome exhibits from non-members as well as from its own club members.

There are several classes in which one may exhibit and it is not necessary to have prize blooms in order to compete. Ribbons will be awarded to winning contestants. Entries will close on Wednesday, Sept. 4th and the exhibits must be arranged by 11 o'clock on the day of the exhibition.

Anyone wishing to compete is asked to notify Mrs. E. J. Bryant, 19 James street. The judges are Carl Morton of Northampton, Prof. C. Huntington Smith of Deerfield and Mrs. Marie R. Alexander of Greenfield.

Orange

Official Opening of the Orange-Athol Airport

The official opening of the Orange-Athol Airport is to take the form of an aviation meet which will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 13, 14th and 15th. It is expected the first day will be given over to registration of the planes, passenger carrying, and the official dedication of the field. On Saturday and Sunday there will be airplane racing, exhibition flying, spot landing, bomb dropping tests and parachute jumps. Detailed programs of the events will be available later.

The committee in charge announces that any person or organization desiring to secure concessions at the field should make application with Eugene E. Fairbanks, 30 Park avenue, Athol, Mass. The registration of planes and all matters pertaining to flying will be in charge of Warren O. (Bud) Russell, transport pilot and manager of the Orange-Athol Airport. As a safety precaution it has been decided to have nothing but licensed planes and pilots in attendance at the meet. Mr. Russell already has the assurance from a number of pilots that they will be on hand at the opening day. It is also expected there will be several government planes here.

The grading work on the aviation field has been finished and the field has just received one application of oil as a dust layer. The entire field will be roped off and ample space outside of the runways will be provided for the parking of cars.

The pilots in this section are enthusiastic in their approval of the Orange-Athol landing field. It is therefore expected that there will be a good representation of skillful pilots present for the meet.

Mohawk Trail Will Be Clear in About a Month

More out of the state cars are noticed passing through town in the past two weeks since the notice has gone out that parts of the Mohawk Trail from Charlemont to North Adams can be used. The highway is practically completed to the Whitcomb summit from North Adams and then by using the detour, which ends on the Zoar road and joins the Trail road again just above Charlemont village. In about four weeks it has been promised that the Trail would be opened to travel and if clear weather prevails in September the work will no doubt be fully completed. Many of the business places along the Trail from North Adams to Charlemont are still closed as there have been almost no passing except by road workers.

Season For Roadside Marketing Of Fruits and Vegetables

That this should be the harvest season for roadside marketing of fruits and vegetables is the view of Charles H. Adams, chairman of the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life. In a brief statement he says:

This is the season when the city dweller having an automobile may shop at the door of the farmer with advantage to both. The month of September is a great clearance sale for all the products which the farmer can spare.

With a little salesmanship on the part of the farmer, fruits and vegetables may be sold for cash direct to consumers, driving in a million automobiles, along nearly every road and farm.

Prices should be right—perhaps about half way between retail and wholesale—thus giving the consumer something towards the gasoline. And, in addition, the wonderful flavor of home-grown fruits, ripened in the sun and the sun, will encourage the consumption of a larger volume of farm products at the season when they are plentiful and at their best.

Incidentally, the direct country marketing brings together many people of the city and town, the banker and the farmer; these contacts making many regular customers and friendships. And who knows how many young men, who are fed up with city life, are being won back to the farm where the farmers' daughters put up the bundles and throw in an extra red ear of corn or a big red apple.

A young commercial traveler, new to the "road", asked for a room at a hotel and was promptly accommodated.

To the landlord he said "I suppose you have special terms for commercials?"
"My word, yes," said the host grimly, "but I couldn't use em in polite society."—(Cornwall Advertiser.)

Editorial

EVERY TOWN AND COMMUNITY IN NEW ENGLAND MUST BE AIR MARKED AT ONCE.....CHEERIO

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an article upon the prime necessity of every town and city in New England getting its name in sight for aviation purposes, and this of course, is applicable to the entire country. But here in New England we have the unique opportunity of becoming one of the great centers of this new and potentially vast industry IF ALL OUR TOWNS AND COMMUNITIES GET BUSY AT ONCE AND ADVERTISE THE NAME OF THEIR PLACE UPON THE BIG ROOFS.

We are proud to say that Northfield has done so, as well as Hinsdale and Millers Falls; and, of course, Brattleboro was ahead of us all, and there are others. But we know of many towns and communities in the Big Circle Section in which this paper circulates that are still without the air markings. Get busy, please.

Those who would seem to be in the know declare that IMMEDIATE AND VAST DEVELOPMENT IN THE AVIATION FIELD IN NEW ENGLAND NOW DEPENDS SOLELY UPON THE AIR MARKING OF MANY MORE OF THE TOWNS AND COMMUNITIES. And that's that.

YES, CAN DO

Suppose everybody knows about the game called "Tug of War"? In this game, as you will remember, a long, stout rope is used in playing the game, and the players divide into two groups. At a signal each side begins to pull. The object is to see if one side can pull the other across the line. The team which succeeds in doing this is declared the winner.

In "Tug of War" every man puts every ounce of strength he has into the thing. There is no hanging back. No one attempts to argue that the thing should be done some other way. Everybody pulls his best and pulls until the game is won or lost.

This is the spirit that we believe prevails in this town of Northfield. Every man, woman or child that we have talked with concerning our Airport project, while they may have, in some instances, voiced the usual joking remarks, at the same time assured us that they stood ready to help in any way they could. We believe that every single one of them is sincere. And, believing so, we know that we are going to succeed, not alone in this airport thing, but also in others to come later on.

For, while we are old enough to know how little we really know, we do know that this community (or any other of like character) can do just about anything they undertake IF ALL WORK AND PULL TOGETHER just as, in the "Tug of War" game.

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW?

1. What is the name of a warm, very dry wind in the Rockies?
2. Why are house flies dangerous?
3. What part of the body is the cerebrum?
4. In setting a table, how should the edge of the knife be placed?
5. What is the state flower of California?
6. What president issued the Emancipation Proclamation?
7. Whose name is connected with the invention of the phonograph?
8. What is an algebraic expression containing two or more terms called?
9. What does the humidity of the air refer to?
10. Where was Christ born?
11. Who discovered the Pacific ocean?
12. Why may a great variety of fruit be raised in California?

Gabs and Jabs

He—To think that tunnel we've just come through cost $3,000,000.
She—An entire waste of money as far as you're concerned.

Bill—Why do they measure the ocean in knots?
Will—I dunno.
Bill—So they can have the ocean tide.

UNPLEASANT FUSS
Three Englishmen sat on a hotel porch. A car passed. "A Daimler," said one. Twenty minutes later the second man said, "No, a Rolls Royce." Half an hour later the third rose and left saying, "I can't stand these beastly arguments."

THOUGHTFUL HUSBAND
"John," called his wife from the bedroom, "I heard the clock strike two as you came in."
"Yes, dear. It was beginning to strike ten but I stopped it for fear it should wake you."

The Lord's Providence

Matthew 6:31, 32, 33, 34. Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? 32. (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. 33. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. 34. Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

Selected Recipes

Jams and Jellies

By Betty Barclay
The following recipes are for rather unusual jams and jellies—at least, they are unusual to most of us. But they are delicious enough to repeat year after year, once they are tried. Use them as spreads for the in-between bite the children insist upon. They contain plenty of minerals and salts, are easy to digest, tend to balance the bread or roll on which they are spread, and through their sugar content they furnish the kind of quick energy fuel that playing children require.

Series of Special Meetings

At Calvary Methodist Church

Calvary Methodist church, Hinsdale, closed a series of special meetings, last Sunday night with a beautiful candle light service in which about thirty-five persons made a decision for Christ for the first time, and several others decided to reconsecrate themselves to Christ and the church anew. The lighting effect during the service when the electric lights were turned out and only one large candle burning, produced a situation conducive to thought and meditation. After the sermon: "A Challenge To Life", by the pastor, and "Lo, I Am With You Always", by the Reverend Mr. Jewett of West Rindge, the invitation was given. The whole auditorium was soon set aglow by the smaller candles lighted by the young people from the large candle representing Christ.

The Vacation Bible school students took part in the service by giving the scripture lesson, music, memory verses from the Bible and great poems, and their yell. Much credit is due to Mrs. Maude Sargent and Miss Ethel Andrews, who have worked so successfully, managing over forty lively primary and junior students.

It has been decided to put more emphasis on young people's work in the church, and in view of that fact, the church have decided to organize a young people's choir and an Epworth league as soon as convenient. Several persons have asked to join the church, among whom are some of the Vacation Bible school students. Philipp Langille and his sister, Ruth, and Jasper Freeman have already united with the church and are among the active workers in the forward program.

An outstanding feature coming soon is the "Autumnal Bazaar" under the auspices of the Ladies Aid, given at the town hall on the 13th of September. Booths, supper, etc., entertainment of the best type of which we can mention, a musicale by children and a play "Mollie's Millions" by a cast of professional players from Keene.

"I've Been Reading"

By WILDER BUELL

"THIS BELIEVING WORLD", by Lewis Browne, MacMillan, pages 334, price $3.50.

Some fifteen years ago a group of leading editors in the newspapers and magazine field met informally in New York city to discuss some of the problems of the trade. And among other things, they considered the question as to what field of human thought and endeavor would be the next great public obsession. All journalism had just gone through a phase of political reform. Muckraking the politics of the nation and of the local political units had been the sensational subject of a group of leading papers and magazines. And together with the political discussion had gone a reappraisal of our economics. Big business was in for a hauling over the coals, and got it. But both subjects were becoming a little trite. The heaviest reforms had been accomplished and the public was becoming tired of the subject. What would be the next great topic for discussion? Would it be science, or the position of women, or the arts, or what? And, to the surprise of some of the younger writers present, the experienced editors, those who have that sixth sense for the trends of public opinion that mark the successful publisher, decided that the next great topic of interest to the public would be religion. They foretold that America was in for a great religious revival.

They may have been right. They probably were. But the war intervened. All Europe burst into flames and, for over ten years, the war and its aftermath of revolution and economic readjustment has kept the center of the stage. But, as we come back to normal, the interest in religion, foreseen at that time, is beginning to manifest itself. An amazingly large number of books on religion, and the closely related field of ethics and morals, are appearing every month. And, what is more significant, they are being widely read. All kinds of people who, twenty years ago, could not have been paid to read a book on religion, are buying and reading them eagerly. There is an immense public curiosity as to the origins of religion and as to the comparative value and importance of the various systems of religious thought. This is not, as some of the orthodox believe, a desire to find an excuse for revolt from the churches. It is genuine search for the truth, a desire to find God. Never, in the history of this country, have the churches faced such an opportunity as they have at present, if only the leaders of religion have the courage to face that opportunity.

Mr. Browne's book is a short discussion of comparative religion. And it has been a best seller. It deserves to be. Written in a charming style that is humorous without bad taste, it reduces the result of scholarship to simple terms that can be understood by everybody, one of the tests of great art. It gives, (in a surprisingly brief space) the essentials of the principal religions of the ancient and modern worlds. No one who is interested in religion, as who is not, should fail to read this book. Even those who are already familiar with the subject matter should read it for the sake of the delightful and vivid treatment of a difficult subject. Mr. Browne has written other books, a history of the Jews and a novel which is to be published this fall, called "All Things Are Possible." And he takes his place with those who are trying to add the sum of human knowledge in the difficult and elusive field of the search for God, in the spirit of inquiry, not of dogmatism, with the attitude, all too rare in the churches, of malice toward none, of charity to all.

Vermont Has Own Building At Eastern States Exposition

VERMONT will have a permanent home of its own at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., this year when the new $50,000 Vermont State Building, designed to accommodate exhibits from the Green Mountain State will be opened to the public on Sunday, Sept. 15, and dedicated with impressive exercises at which Gov. John E. Weeks will deliver the dedicatory address on Tuesday, Sept. 17. In its new home on the Avenue of States, Vermont takes its place with Maine and Massachusetts which already have buildings, and will be joined in 1930 by New Hampshire which has provided by legislative act for a similar structure.

The Vermont State Building has a frontage of 86 feet with two bays. It is 142½ feet deep, narrowing to 74 feet in width for the principal depth of the exhibition area. The front section is 27 feet high to the cornice, dropping to 20 feet for the exhibition hall. Monitor type construction provides an unusual degree of light and ventilation.

It is of early Georgian architectural design and treatment. In front it has a recessed portico and an entablature supported by six white marble columns and pilasters. Quoin corners are of marble as are window sills and heads. The pediment over the portico carries the Vermont State seal in relief and color. Wall surfaces are of water struck brick laid in Flemish bond. The base is of Barre granite, finely wrought, and marble is from the Proctor quarries. Roof is of Vermont variegated slate, surmounted by a cupola tower with clock.

There are three main entrance doorways across the front portico, with an iron grill balcony. Ends of the front projection are of colonial architecture with additional entrances. In the rear are two large doors with ramps so that trucks can be driven directly into the building. The structure has a large storage cellar. The exhibition hall is of mill type with eight center line steel posts, the monitor roof being supported by steel beams.

Interior trim is of wood and the building is lined with white sand lime brick. Twelve foot aisle space has been allowed and there are 44 exhibition booths. There is running water in every other booth and full drainage facilities. To relieve the interior a second floor balcony across the front of the building has been provided for, as well as spacious committee rooms and a speakers' gallery. The commission in charge of the Vermont building is: Guy H. Boyce of Proctor, chairman, Morton T. Downing of Bellows Falls, secretary, James A. Stacey of Windsor, Walter H. Crockett of Burlington, and E. H. Jones of Montpelier. W. H. McLean of Boston designed the structure and it was built by Loucks & Clark, Inc., of Wallingford, Conn., general contractors.

THE BANK'S PART IN THE FARM PROBLEM

By H. LANE YOUNG

Member American Bankers Association
Agricultural Commission

ONE of the most discussed and least understood questions regarding the farmer's problems is the part the bank has played, or is to play, in financing the farmer. The basis of co-operation between the two, however, is a very simple one.

Both sides are subject to criticism for the condition that exists today. The major share of the blame rests on those banks that have failed through disregarding fundamental principles in loaning other people's money, that have encouraged the farmer to expect bank loans without first putting his business on the earning basis which would justify a bank to lend him money.

One of the underlying reasons for the failure of so many country banks has been the existence of too many banks. With the limited business of the community divided among too many banks it was impossible for them to make enough money to justify the employment of officers with the proper ability to manage the bank successfully. Then the scramble for business was so hard that good judgment and foresight were forgotten in granting loans, with the resultant failure of the weaker institutions.

In the future, banks are not going to loan the money of their depositors without the kind of security that can be immediately realized upon in case the loan is not paid, or unless the applicant presents a sound and successful record of business operation—whether that business be manufacturing, merchandising, or farming.

Farming-Banking Interdependent

This is a perfectly obvious attitude, because country banking cannot be successfully and profitably carried on unless farming is successfully and profitably operated—the two businesses are dependent upon each other. There is no longer any question that the time has arrived for these interdependent businesses to reach a common ground of understanding of the requirements that both must meet for their mutual welfare.

There is no doubt but what the future prosperity of the farmer and the basis of cooperation between banker and farmer is the intelligent diversification of crops. It is necessary, however, to have the right conception of diversification.

The mistake that many farmers have made in attempting to diversify has been to invest too much money, time and land in a new and untried crop—sometimes a hazardous crop, or one for which no immediate market has been developed, resulting in a loss of the initial effort and discouragement of future efforts on a more conservative basis.

Disregarding the primary and essential principle of farming—namely, increasing earnings by decreasing the cost of production through the practice of building up soil by crop rotation and intensive cultivation, is responsible for a large share of the farmers' trouble today.
